Copyright Disclaimer: Scratch, Grounder and Snively are owned by DiC Entertainment/Sega of America. Eggplant Wizard, King Hippo and Mouser are owned by Nintendo/DiC Entertainment. General Klump is owned by Nintendo/Rare/Nelvana. Psycrow and Professor Monkey-for-a-head are created by Doug TeNapel. Bebop and Rocksteady are owned by Fred Wolf Films. Stiletto is owned by Cosgrove Hall. Nephrite and Kunzite are created by Naoko Takeuchi.

Comments: Usually it is always either the heroes or the villains who get the say or main characters in a story but this time the henchmen have the centre spot. Personally the henchmen are better than the villains who are better than the heroes as they have to do more work while the other two groups do hardly nothing. There might be more henchmen if I can remember anymore.

The Henchman Meeting - Chapter 1 - The Henchmen Meeting Starts at 10

It has turned Saturday morning in some random city in Europe waiting outside are various henchmen for the entrance to open. The first minion in the line was a black crow wearing a greeny blue suit, behind him were two robots which one looked like a chicken and another was a blue green drilling robot with a meter on his stomach. Behind the dynamic duo were another pair of lackeys, there were a thin purple eggplant and a large musculy man who was coloured blue which he only had on was a pair of shorts and a crown. Next was a large green crocodile with an army helmet and a small man with strange hair but mostly bald. At the end of the queue was a white mouse wearing sunglasses.

The chicken robot squalked, "This is taking a long time Grounder."

"Sure it is Scratch, but there are always delays", replied the green driller.

At the other side of the road, there were two henchmen waiting to cross the road, one had short brown hair and the other had long grey hair which they looked at each other when the green man appeared on the crossing which very quickly they crossed the road. The two partners in crime then stood behind the mouse.

The short lackey grunted, "Come on open up, I've been waiting three hours."

"That was nothing-a, I have been here since three-a o'clock in the morning," spoke the suited crow with the Italian accent.

Suddenly a janitor looking person who had a long moustache and wore a blue cleaning suit walked towards the conference building which he put the key into the lock. The key then unlocked the double doors and quickly walked down the street as the henchmen ran towards the doors which following them was a mutant pig and a mutant rhino who was a little bit late.

Inside the conference building, there were three doors on the left and three doors on the right as this building in Europe was large with a long red carpet on the floor and the walls are painted in burgendy in a luxury style. The black crow walked past the doors as they need the special henchmen room. The purple eggplant read the signs on the doors which read, Japanese created heroic room, American created heroic room and Sidekicks/Friends on the left hand side while on the right hand side read, Conference for Evil Doers, Other created heroic room and a sign in German for some reason. Very quickly the henchmen stopped in the middle of the hallway scratching their heads.

The blue man wearing shorts shouted, "Where is the room?"

"We need the exact location for our meeting except that we do not know where", replied the green crocodile.

The white mouse then walked very closely towards the German written room and tried to read the description.

The mouse henchman pointed, "Zee room is for wacky professors or scientific geniuses."

As the other henchmen were starting to walk away with their heads down feeling that they are not valued, the black crow pointed towards some stylish stairs and a sign.

"Look our fellow henchamen, our room is at the top floor at the Sky-a Box", yelled the Italian crow.

Very quickly all the henchmen ran up the stairs until they have reached the personal golden door that said Lifetime Minion Lackey Henchmen Lounge.

Scratch laughed, "This is luxury and I will get the leather chair."

"Oh yeah, I would get the leather chair first", argued back Grounder.

The green crocodile tries to pull the door open by pulling the handle as he is panting on opening the door which the door is still closed. Very quickly, the blue boxer and the mutant rhino then charged with the general at the door which sneakily, the short lackey got a lockpick to open the door. As the door opened, the two chargers then slipped on the floor landing on their backs.

The crocodile yelped, "Help us, our fellow henchmen."

As soon as possible, the brown haired and the grey haired goons then lifted the mutant rhino up which then Scratch and Grounder lifted the green crocodile, both with success. However this was short lived as the Super Special Sonic Search and Smash Squad collapsed on the floor.